THE MSA STORY

Where it all began.

1981 - Jerma Palace Hotel, Malta

Our story began in 1981 with carpet work at Jerma Palace Hotel, ahead of its opening in 1982. That project remains part of the foundations of Mark Schembri & Sons Limited.

From those beginnings, our work has grown through practical knowledge, careful installation and lasting relationships.

THE NEXT CHAPTER

From generation to generation.

A shared commitment.

From father to son, the knowledge and care behind MSA continue into a new generation. Our story began with carpet work at Jerma Palace in 1981; today, that experience informs every new project.

We support healthcare, hospitality, commercial and residential environments with flooring and interior finishing solutions.

From selection to installation.

Material selection, quotation, supply and installation planning - coordinated around the needs of each space.

Mater Dei Hospital · completed in 2007

Best foot forward: Mater Dei hospital will have a non-slip vinyl floor

Lm1.53 million project under way at Mater Dei Hospital

A contract to cover one-fifth of the Mater Dei Hospital floor with vinyl, a rubber-like floor which does not slip is and easy to wash, is well under way. Mark Schembri and Associates is the company entrusted to cover 100,000 square metres of the 500,000 square metres of floor area at the new hospital in Tal-Qroqq. The product used is vinyl flooring, supplied by Swedish company Tarkett Sommers.

Mr Schembri said the company set up a vinyl floor laying school in which 12 people are being trained to lay vinyl floors by Leif Fallman from Sweden. He said Mr Fallman, who is 61, has ample experience in floor-laying and is training Maltese people this trade. He also said the initiative is supported by the Employment and Training Corporation and the Labour Office.

Mr Schembri said the plant rooms, corridors, operating theatres, wards and lavatories will all be covered with vinyl flooring. The rest of the floor space would be covered in usual ceramic tiles.

Visiting the school yesterday, parliamentary secretary George Hyzler said it was his pleasure to see that such a young company, as Mark Schembri and Associates, was making an efforts to advance, while training locals in a specific trade.

Archive material from the original MSA portfolio

The Mater Dei Hospital project was a major milestone in our company's history. We took responsibility for approximately 100,000 square metres within an exceptionally demanding timeframe.

Planning, dedication and operational coordination enabled completion on time. It became the largest project in our company's history, demonstrating our ability to deliver complex, high-volume work.
